

Farewell

By Danny Schwarze

The time has come as it always does
For us to part my friend
To go our separate ways 'til life
Brings us back again
But don't grieve for the time that we're apart
For me, don't shed a tear
For you know that as we walk our roads
They'll lead us right back here

We're throwing back our drinks
And we're heading for the door
We'll soon see what tomorrow has in store
Though parting has it's sorrows
We haven't reached the end
We'll say farewell so we can meet again
We'll say farewell so we can meet again

This happy place and these pleasant folk
You know they're close to my heart
The laughter through the sun and the rain
I'll miss when once we part
And like you I will be sad to go
To leave such friends as these
But the waves must carry me away
Upon life's distant seas

We're throwing back our drinks
And we're heading for the door
We'll soon see what tomorrow has in store
Though parting has it's sorrows
We haven't reached the end
We'll say farewell so we can meet again
We'll say farewell so we can meet again

I wish the night would never end
That the sun would refuse to rise
That the moon and the stars above us
Would ever light the skies
But the sorrow we feel with this parting glass
Is proof we'll meet again
For this great night must come to a close
So a new one can begin

The time has come as it always does
For us to part my friend
To go our separate ways 'til life
Brings us back again
But don't grieve for the time that we're apart
For me, don't shed a tear
For you know that as we walk our roads
They'll lead us right back here

We're throwing back our drinks
And we're heading for the door
We'll soon see what tomorrow has in store
Though parting has its sorrows
We haven't reached the end
We'll say farewell so we can meet again
We'll say farewell so we can meet again
