

They Won't Break Your Fall

By Danny Schwarze

I can see the games you like to play
I can see the games you like to play
Shooting dice for people's lives, such astronomic stakes
I can see the games you like to play

You're riding high by living low
You're riding high by living low
You flash a two-faced smile, you're a master of the show
You're riding high by living low

And it's a long way down
From your high horse to the ground
And the folks that you beat down
They won't hear your call
They won't break your fall

You're shaking hands and sipping your champagne
You're shaking hands and sipping your champagne
Climbing up on broken backs, their loss is your gain
You're shaking hands and sipping your champagne

And it's a long way down
From your high horse to the ground
And the folks that you beat down
They won't hear your call
They won't break your fall

I can see the games you like to play
I can see the games you like to play
Basking in the glory without sharing in the blame
I can see the games you like to play

And it's a long way down
From your high horse to the ground
And the folks that you beat down
They won't hear your call
They won't break your fall
