Biography

Bill Grogan's Goat combines solid Detroit rock with traditional Celtic melodies to produce a truly unique sound. Highland pipes, mandolin, fiddle, banjo, bouzouki, and penny whistle, accompanied by rock and roll bass, guitar, and drums, breathe new life into time-honored songs of love, war and whiskey, tightly combining traditional songs with reels, jigs, and hornpipes at a pace that will challenge the Lord of the Dance himself.

Press and Reviews

"Now, here's something a little bit unusual to get your teeth into. Highland pipes, mandolins and fiddles caress against rock'n'roll. It works!"

- PROG Magazine -

"You can sense a love for and familiarity with the source material, and also a wild, adventurous spirit that...showcases the band's level of technical skill and experience."

- Proglodytes -

"...louder, faster, dirtier and more Motor City guitar riffs than you could ever imagine Irish folk to be. Iggy and The Stooges meets The Clancy Brothers...it's good and at times skull crushing amazing..."

- Shite 'n' Onions-
