

Elyse Aeryn - Long Bio

Elyse Aeryn is emerging on the Canadian music scene with a fresh yet nostalgic sound, reminiscent of 90s alternative with a rock & roll influence. She has legitimized herself as a CBC Searchlight Top 100 artist, a regional finalist in the Jim Beam Talent Search, and with two #1 songs on the 97.5 Community Radio East Coast 30. The live-off-the-floor performance of "East Coast Winter", now with >200k Facebook views, has reached the hearts of east coasters across the country.

Aeryn is currently working on her second album with the first single, Bittersweet High, now available on all streaming platforms. Influenced by classic rock heroes like Stevie Nicks and Tom Petty, while capturing the essence of 90s female vocalists like Alanis Morissette and Natalie Merchant, Aeryn is blending genres and decades to mix up an alternative-rock-country cocktail that will have you asking for a double.

Writing from personal experience, her storytelling lyrics and dynamic compositions effortlessly connect with listeners, while her stage presence and genuine ability to engage an audience in-person and online are building a loyal following.

You can catch Aeryn performing just about any night of the week in her home province of Nova Scotia with guitarist Garrett Taylor or with a full-band. Their high energy, genre-bending show is what really seals the deal for listeners, connecting on a soul level as they play off each other and the audience while encouraging many sociables.

Opening for acts such as Adyn Townes, Andre Pettipas and the Giants, The Collective, and Roxy and the Underground Soul Sound, Aeryn is making a name for herself across the Maritimes and beyond.
