

Transportation has formed and transformed this nation. It is a factor in how we move, our access to opportunities and how goods get to market. If we understand these systems, specifically the challenges ahead, can we get these systems to work better, more equitably, to advance climate resilience? Can there really be Soulcraft? I'm Jeanne Acutanza, join me for the Move the Era pod as I talk to some of my transport friends about our post-pandemic new normal, the effects of technology, governance and policy, and what might be coming down the road.